We need the most expansive access to information. The Bell systems provide an essential service that would effectively cut out all or most competition if they did not have to share their lines.